

God says, “Good Readers, Make Connections to Their Own Lives While They Read.”

To something they have done.

To something they have read about in another book.

To something they have heard about or seen in another form of media.